

“Faith It, Until You Make It...One Day at a Time!”

By Krista R. Swauncy

krista.swauncy@gmail.com

Faith-based entrepreneur, author and life coach Kenneth Brown recently signed copies of his latest book, L.I.F.E: Living in Freedom Everyday! Six Principles for Successful Living at Borders Books and Music in Germantown, Tn. Born to a young, mother who was only 13-years-old in Chicago, Illinois, Brown’s mother instilled the biblical principle of operating in unyielding faith regardless of the circumstances that lie before you. In spite of a tough upbringing and enduring several evictions throughout the course of his adolescent life, Brown’s tenacity led him to pursue undergraduate studies at Southern Illinois University. Upon graduation, Ken secured employment opportunities in the food service industry that subsequently opened doors to make him one of the youngest African-American McDonald’s franchise owner/operators in the country.

Today, Kenneth Brown walks and talks his personal philosophy of “life is 10% what happens to you and 90% how you respond to it” to impact people in various business, media and educational arenas. Successfully authoring two books (previously penning A Leap of Faith), Brown continues to captivate audiences around the country with biblical and practical wisdom that can be applied to every aspect of your life.

Kenneth Brown is more than an entrepreneur, author and a life coach – he is the epitome of every man, woman and child that has risen above disparaging circumstances by “faith(ing) it, until you make it!”